

It has been brought to my attention that you are considering abolishing the XM radios ability to provide instant weather and traffic. You are making a huge mistake and I can tell you that from experience. I recently made a trip from Oklahoma to Florida for spring break, I was taking my 3 and 6 yr olds to Disneyworld for the first time. I used the radio to listen to the upcoming weather and updates on traffic for the different regions of the country we were going to be travelling in. In two instances, one in Dallas and one in Orlando, the instant traffic reports saved my family a great deal of time, if not for the warning that was being broadcast my family and I would have been stuck in about 3 hours of traffic, however due to the early warning we were able to to circumvent two very tragic accidents and not delay our trip at all, this was very important to my family as we had a strict timeline to follow and a set itinerary to meet. I say this because at the same time, this information was not being broadcast on the local radio stations.
